

TIP Storefront General Info & Requirements

Thank you for your interest in the TIP Storefront program. Below you will find general information about the program, including eligibility requirements.

- You must first be a current TIP Trainer and have successfully completed a minimum of 4 TIP adoptions/sales.
- TIP Storefronts are required to have the ability house 20 or more mustangs and burros at any one time.
- Your facility should be easily accessible for potential adopters or purchasers and tractor/trailers that are picking up and dropping off mustangs. Remember, the public is who will be viewing the TIP animals, so your facility should be kept in a manner suitable for public showing.
- Off-loading chutes that are easily accessible for tractor/trailers keep TIP animals safe when they first arrive at your facility. The more space the better for driving trailers around the facility. It will be helpful to adopters if they have plenty of room to load their new mustang.
- Feed and hay needs a dry place to be kept. More mustangs and burros means more feed and hay. Be sure to have adequate feed and hay in stock at all times.
- Know your feeding plan before the TIP animals arrive.
- You need a chute for haltering or medically treating any animal that may need it.
- There will need to be plenty of holding pens for untrained TIP animals. You also need an area where you can isolate sick animals yet still provide them with shelter from adverse weather conditions.
- Have a plan in place to prevent the spread of infectious disease between wild horses and burros and other equids that visit or reside on the property.
- Be prepared to discuss your plan for handling sick, injured or, in the unfortunate circumstance, deceased animals.
- Your state or local authorities may have licensing or registration that is needed. Check with them on their regulations.
- Your facility should be compliant on all local permitting to house 20 or more animals.
- If you are interested in becoming an approved TIP Storefront, please complete and submit the Storefront Interest Form today!